TAXATION IN THE UNITED KINGDOM

The tax consequences for each Shareholder of acquiring, holding, redeeming or disposing of shares depends upon the relevant laws of any jurisdiction to which the Shareholder is subject. Shareholders in the Company should seek their own professional advice as to this, as well as to any relevant exchange control or other relevant laws and regulations.

The statements on taxation below are intended to be a general guide to the anticipated tax treatment in the U.K. of the Company and its Shareholders. The statements relate to Shareholders holding shares as an investment (as opposed to as a dealer) and are based on the law and practice in force at the date of this Supplementary Prospectus. As is the case with any investment, there can be no guarantee that the tax position prevailing at the time an investment in the Company is made will continue indefinitely.

The Company

The Company is a UCITS scheme established in Ireland and so it is not resident in the U.K. for tax purposes.

The Share Classes

Each Share Class constitutes an offshore fund for the purposes of the U.K.'s special tax regime for offshore funds in the Offshore Funds (Tax) Regulations 2009. Accordingly, the provisions of those regulations are relevant to the taxation of Shareholders in respect of income and gains.

A number of Share Classes have been certified by the U.K. tax authority (HM Revenue & Customs or "HMRC") as being a "reporting fund" for U.K. tax purposes. The up-to-date list may be viewed on the HMRC website at <http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/collective/rep-funds.xls>.

The Shareholders

Income

Shareholders resident in the U.K. for tax purposes will generally be liable to U.K. income tax or corporation tax in respect of any distributions paid and any amounts reported to investors as "reportable income" in respect of shares held, subject to their personal circumstances. This income will generally be treated for U.K. tax purposes as either dividend income or interest for the purposes of income tax and corporation tax, as described below.

Delaware Investments Emerging Markets Fund, Delaware Investments Global Value Fund, Delaware Investments U.S. Large Cap Growth Fund and Delaware Investments U.S. Large Cap Value Fund: Where a dividend is paid or treated as paid to a U.K. individual, the taxpayer will be liable to income tax at 10% in the case of basic rate taxpayers, 32.5% in the case of higher rate taxpayers or 37.5% in the case of additional rate taxpayers. A tax credit is currently available, which reduces the effective tax rates to 0%, 25% and 30.55% respectively. For corporate Shareholders subject to U.K. corporation tax, dividends will generally be exempt from corporation tax.

The UK Government has announced that, from 6 April 2016, the first £5,000 of dividends received (or deemed to be received) by U.K. resident individuals will not be subject to income tax. Above this level, the tax rates applying to dividends will be 7.5% for basic rate taxpayers, 32.5% for higher rate taxpayers and 38.1% for additional rate taxpayers. There will no longer be a tax credit attached to dividends.

Delaware Investments Corporate Bond Fund and Delaware Investments High-Yield Bond Fund: Where a dividend is paid or treated as paid to a U.K. individual, the amount will be treated as interest for UK tax purposes, and the taxpayer will be liable to income tax at 10% in the case of starting rate on savings income taxpayers, 20% in the case of basic rate taxpayers, 40% in the case of higher rate taxpayers or 45% in the case of additional rate taxpayers. No tax credits are available to reduce these effective tax rates. Corporate Shareholders subject to U.K. corporation tax will be liable to tax on these amounts in accordance with the loan relationships rules (see also the note below about these Funds on gains for corporate shareholders).

The U.K. Government has also announced that, from 6 April 2016, it will introduce a personal savings allowance that will exempt the first £1,000 of interest, including amounts taxable as interest, received or deemed to be received by U.K. resident individuals, from tax in the hands of basic rate taxpayers (there will no longer be a separate starting rate). The exempt amount will be reduced to £500 for higher rate taxpayers and additional rate taxpayers will not receive an allowance.

Gains

Where a Share Class has had reporting fund status (and, where relevant, previously distributor status) throughout the duration of the Shareholder's investment in that Share Class, any gain on disposal of the investment (allowing for a deduction of any amounts reported as income but not actually distributed) will be subject to taxation as a capital gain.

Where a Share Class has not had reporting fund status (or, where relevant, previously distributor status) throughout the duration of the Shareholder's investment in that Share Class, any gain on disposal of the investment (allowing for a deduction of amounts reported as income but not actually distributed) will be subject to taxation as income.

Where over 60% of a Fund's investments are invested at any time in a relevant accounting period in interest-paying (and economically similar) investments, such as in the case of Delaware Investments Corporate Bond Fund and Delaware Investments High-Yield Bond Fund, then U.K. corporate investors should treat the holding as if it were a loan relationship for that accounting period. Those liable to U.K. corporation tax will be taxable on any increase in the fair value of their holdings in those Funds (including any distributions received) over that accounting period (or obtain relief for any loss). Corporate investors which fall within these provisions are not subject to the tax rules described in the two preceding paragraphs in this section headed "Gains".

Anti-Avoidance Provisions

The U.K. tax rules contain a number of anti-avoidance codes that can apply to U.K. investors in offshore funds in particular circumstances. It is not anticipated that they will normally apply to investors. Any U.K. taxpaying investor who (together with connected persons) holds over 25% of the Company should take specific advice.

EU Savings Directive, FATCA and other reporting regimes

The Company is required to report information about investors' holdings in the Sub-funds to the Irish tax authority in order for it to pass certain information to Shareholders' tax authorities under various automatic exchange of information regimes. Irish law currently requires reporting in respect of the EU Savings Directive and FATCA (the US Foreign Account and Tax Compliance Act). Please see the prospectus for further details.
